Radon Environmental is a building and health sciences company focused on reducing public exposures to radon gas. The leading environmental cause of lung cancer is radon exposure. The company is investigating and developing new and innovative approaches to minimizing public exposure.

Radon Environmental: The Company

Approximately 80% of the most densely populated areas of Canada are in elevated or high radon potential zones. With a geologic radon potential map it's possible to examine relationships between relative radon hazards and populations – Is the chosen site for a housing development, school or workplace in a high radon potential zone ?

Relationships: Assessing Radon Impact
